HELPING A DRUNK

New York Officers Practical Sym-

The writer, in company with Col-mel Cox, while on Eighth Avenue, New York, recently, saw a poor fellow lying on the sidewalk. He had been having "a good time." Near him stood a priest, who was waiting for a police officer, to call an ambulance. The Salvationists took in the situation at a glance and secured an glass of water from a near-by slore-keeper and gave the injured man a drink, then buthed his face. A woman in the crowd remarked: "Sure, and it's The Salvation Army "Sure, and it's the Salvation Army that's always doin' the right thing. God bless them!" The General is anxious to help our own people in Belgium, but the enleted war chest prevents him from doing what he desires.

Delegates to the I.C.C. will remember the charming Belgian Delegates. The beautiful Salvation spirit they manifested, together with their picresque national attire, made them prime favourites with all. As will be en by the striking article and picture on Page Five, in spite of all that has ciallen that country the Salvationists are sticking to their posts of duty.

Then our Work in France is in great straits for want of funds. Colonel Fornachon, who is in charge, tells pitiful tales of what he could do for the Delgian refugees, and also for impoverished French Salvationists, if he had noney. The General is desirous of sending him some, but the amount is diserably inadequate, as the income of the International Headquarters has ell nigh stooned.

The Sandon that Canada hopes to send The General will enable him to

Thousands of Beigian fugitives have been received with the utmost sympathy in Holland, everyone considering it an honour to help these poor people. A Despatch to the London "Telegraph" from Rotterdam says that the people of Holland face an awful wave of misery themselves, and that many of them run the danger of starvation from their attempts to feed the multitude of refugees from Belgium.

But, in addition to the Belgians, our comrades in all the Continental intries where conscription obtains are in sad straits on account of the calling out of the officers and soldiers to rejoin their colours.

The General wants to help them. Will you do your part in putting him n position to render them assistance?

Conducts Spiritual Meeting With Territorial Headquarters Staff-Major John Southall Says

At a meeting conducted by the Chief Secretary in the Council Chamber of the Toronto Temple on Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 13th at which the Territorial Headquarters Staff and Training College Staff, were present, Staff-Captain White said a few words of larevell prior to proceeding to London, Ont., to sake over his duties as Chancellor, and Major Southall did likewise, before going to Montreal as Superintendent of the Men's Social Work. The Major declared that he was glad to be linked up with such a great work as the Social Work. Since his closer association with its problems and opportunities, under the tutelage of Lieut. Glonel kernel the telegion of Jesus is an intensity practical thing, and he was going to Montreal with faith and expectation, and rejoicing in the great sphere of usefulness before him.

The Chief Sceretary gave a very-earnest address on an Olicers' work, responsibilities, and reward. As a-means of blessing and inspiration to the Officers, these gatherings are betoming increasingly valued.

PRAY FOR THE CENERAL

The war threatens to drag out a seemy length destroying life and broperty all the time. There is, therefore, great need for my to aven size faith and patience and perseverance in prayer for God to bring vicforw to the arms of those who are briting for the principles of ciches. pusiess and peace, against those who advocate might and practice opposesthen. Longer and longer grows the Est of the killed and wounded, and the numbers of refugees those who have had to fice, leaving behind their goods and chattels increase by tens of thousands daily. was the thread running through all the addresses at the morning and afternoon meetings conducted by the meetings conducted by the Chief Secretary, assisted by the Ter-ritorial Headquarters Staff, at Lip-pincost Screet Corps (Toronto), on Sunday, Oct. 11th. At night the String of the Divine side was the principal theme and thus was presented to the people the part that man has to play in securing his soul's salvation, and made for saving mankind cutions.

That the qualities of grace and this are deficient in man by nature. "True religion," said Colonel Gaskin, in the Holiness meeting, "is humanity expressed in its highest terms—no more; no less." Thus the love of a father for his children, he went on to say, is comparable in some degree to the love of God, our Heavenly Father, for the human race. A good father designts to give good gifts to his children, and not the least of these is an circa, and not the least of these is an honourable name. Instruction and distriptine are other good gifts, Likewise God delights to give the Holy Spirit to His people. The four forms in which this gift descends upon man were ably explained by the Colonel. Begging for money is always for me a difficult and often a distasteful task, I am sometimes tempted to think that the Lord in His wisdom might have spared us who have the great responsibility of directing His Work from the additional burden and auxicty of raising the funds necessary to keep it going. But he has not done so. To ber for His cause and for His sake, therefore, I am not ashamed. Indeed, when I reflect on the objects for which money is needed, especially at a crisis like the present, hard work as it is, I am rather proud to be a beggar! Another communication of a different class, but one which touches me deeply, is from one of our wellknown Officers. The self-denial and loving co-operation of our Officers generally, and my Staff in narticular, in this moment of anxiety has both increased my faith in God and immeasurably strengthened my love for them. Such decisions as that named in the following letter are doubly blassed. They not only lich The Army as a whole to contine its work; but they do much to knit in closer bonds than ever its various leaders and their people:-

Sept. 24th, 1914. 'My dear General.-I feel very deeply for you since the war began. I wish I could help you more with money, but from this week I shall draw nothing in the way of salary. . I will pray daily for you that the Lord will send you the money needed. He will."

How relentless is the flight of time! It is just forty years-that is to say, in September, 1874-since I entered the service of The Salvation Army. A youth of eighteen, I hadencouraged by my dear Father and mother-already done some amateur work in its ranks; work which had one advantage-it taught me how little I knew of God's wisdom and power, and opened my eyes in some measure, at least, to the great uceds of a world striving to do without Him. I was not very much use. I had, I fear, lacked the disposition to hard work, without which even the eleverest people do not make much out in the schools. I suffered from ill-health-or perhaps I should say had been for some years very delicate. I was already beginning to he deaf. I was afflicted with a positive night-mare of nervous self-depreciation. But I now see that I had one rich possession-a freesure which next to the hand of my God upon me for good, has proved the secret of any value in my life has been or yet may be to the world. I was an enthusiast for lesus Christ HE war, assist though 8 NOTES AND REFLECTIONS was an enthusiast for Jesus Christ. It lifted me un above my own horrid fears. It enlarged my heart and opened my mind. It nerved me in suite of my own failures. It filled my soul with a burning hatred for the abominable cylls which I saw des troving the crowds around me. It enabled me to laugh at the phaetly and evnical unbelief of the agnostic and materialistic notions which in the name of science were at that time beginning to challenge all faith.

And if was that enthusiasm kindled I believe at the Cross of Jesus, and fanned into a flame by the example of my own dear people, which gave me hope for the lost and the worst of the whole world

> Looking back now over that forty years, a period longer than the average of human life, two facts stand out above all the rest, and I want to glorify God for them. My life has teemed with interest. Events of moment have crowded on events of still greater moment. There is scarcely an emotion which has stirred mankind that has not in some way touched me during that time. Literature, politics-of the highest kind-much that belongs to the world in contemporary thought. world problems which concern the whole race of man, national and international influences and tendencies, all these have in some degree come within the range of my vision of experience, and in the midst of all I have been taken up with that which is the most fascinating of all human interests-action; action, as I believe for the good of my fellows.

But when I review it all, everything looks small by the side of those two facts. One, the unchanging, illimitable Mercy of God shown to me in all my need and to thousands whom I know, by the grace of Jesus Christ our Lord. Two, the love and confidence, often beautified by the truest gratitude, which have been manifested to me by the people of all lands for whom I have laboured, especially by my dear comrades of The Salvation Army. Both these precious things encourage me to glorify God and urge me to go forward.

Back of this jetty and pier, to which it affords the only means of access, lies Lome, the capital of Togo, a pretty little town of bamoo bungalows and white stuceo houses, with green jalousies taking the place of windows. Practically the whole of the European population of Togo, about three hundred in alf, reside at Lome; in the thirty in alf, reside at Lome; in the thirty thousand odd square miles of hin-terland there were, at the time when Britain seized the country, not more than about a score of white people, and these were, without exception, and these were, without exception, German officials, either civil or military.

When the news came, shortly after the declaration of war with Germany, that a British force had selzed Lume and occupied part of the ed Lame and occupied part of the following between the control of the following and the following and the following and the following and the radiation of the less stations in the Cameroons at Windhuk in German Southat Windhuk in German South-West in Africa, as well as with Tabora in German East Africa, and with the Palaos and Caroline Islands. The big station at Kamina was, in fact, a receiving, and distributing centre for metsuages from Berlin. Through it also German ships in those waters could be warned, and German eruis-ers instructed. By seizing it we paralyzed the wireless heart of Germany in Africa juany in Africa.

Less than three years ago this fumense wireless station had no existence. Kamina itself was just an ordinary African bush village with blush all round it—a dense, scrubby tropical jungle, uninhabitable. Then stere came along a corps of German surgeons and artiferer. able. Then there came along a corps of German surveyors and artificers. Roads were cut, a temporary light railway was built from the nerman ent railhead, and a big square space was cleared in the heart of the wilderiess. Workshops and houses for the workmen sprang up as if by magic, and hundreds of tons of matable were diagged by putting parting little engines up the steep grades from Louie and dumped down at Atakpaue.

Thousands of natives were impressed for the work. They came from the most distant parts, shepherded by black soldiers; naked Gourma people from the northwest, fierce and wild-looking; statum of the property for the property of the prop wari Konkombwa from the south-eentral region; pagan Kabre and Tamberma mountaineers from the Tamberma mountaineers from the far north-cast; Dagomba and Tscho-kossi from the Topoland Soudan, and many others. All these were forced to labour ne ler the provisions of the Natire Tax Act, by which so many days work may be exacted by the Government each state of a many payment; and, as, the sound of the soundary of an immense permane it camp-cal ed in Togo h "sun ju"-presently ed in Togo a "sun in"—presently sprang up about Kamina, wherein dwelt at one time as many as three or four thousand mer, women, and

The most interesting tribe are the Konkombwa, whose country lies between that of the Tschokossi and the Tschokossi and the Tschokossi and the bound only in the bow and arrow stage of marikal evolution, they are exceedingly brave and warlike, and the Germans have not even yet succeedings to the tribute of ed in completely subduing them 2-Konkombwa warrior in full war dress is probably as picturesque in sight as is to be seen anywhere in Atrica. On his head he wears a Arrica. On his head he wears a helmet, claborately decorated with coverie shells and surmounted with a pair of big, graceful horns of the a pair of big, graceful norms of the roan anteleope. The quiver in which he carries his poisoned arrows is of rhinoceros hide, also ornamented with cowrie shells. Except for his loin cloth, he is quite nude; but his ict-black skin shines like satin, and round his arms from wrist to should der hi some eases, are many hangles of hrass and copper allernating. A curious iron rattle—the noise of which, so he imagines, is calculated strike terror into his enemies to strike terror into his enemies— and a horse-hair switch attached to a heavy brass ring which he wears round his wrist, complete, with his bow, his equipment.

Generally speaking, the Togo na-tives dwell in wattle and danb huts, clustered together anyhow; but the Tschokossi of the extreme north inhabit enrious fortified villages, access to which can only be gained by clambering up a notehed stick used as a ladder. Another tribe, the Tamas a ladder. Another tribe, the Tam-herma, who live in the mountainous country of the far north-west, build themselves regular forts of refuge, constructed on quite scientific prin-

Nearly all the tribes make some attempt at cultivating the soil, and in some eases they raise quite huxuri-ant crops of milet and guinea corn, which is stored, in certain parts of the country in curious three-leaved hins of enormous size. The one shown in the illustration, for in-stance, is capable, when full, of hold-ing between two and three tons of grain, sufficient to supply the whole village for an entire year.

In other ways, too, the people of the centre and south, at all events, show that they are some distance removed from pure savagery. They cultivate cotton, for instance, and weave it into cloth of an execlient quality, using curious wooden looms of exceedingly primitive construc-tion. Iron, too, is mined and smelt-ed by the Konkombwa. The ore is dug out by slave women captured in raids against their neighbours, the Dagomba, and others, and is after-wards started by the men in clay-furnaces of rude but efficient construction. In yet other parts of the country, excellent leather is tanned, from which is manufactured elaboratelyornamented leathern mats—an in-dusty peculiar to Togo. Basket-making from the stem of the palm making from the stem of the palm leaf is also extensively carried out; and the Tschaudjo women and girls make very beautiful beads—hard

CALCADVI ALTA

Over a month ago Captain and Mrs. Oake took charge of Calgary I. Corps, and great advances in our congregations have already been seen. The three souls of Sunday, Sept, 11th, are doing well, and testi-fying in the meetings.

The sale of vegetables and other gitts kindly donated by friends for the, sale realized $50.85, and our target is smashed, in spite of the hard times. It was the largest target we have ever had.—Worker.

WINDSOR ONT.

Our Soldiers are mobolizing well, and the numbers at the meetings are increasing. We had a talk re-cently by the Rev. Mr. Fergoson (Methodist), of Walkerville.

On Sunday night we had a fine meeting, conducted by Ensign Lay-man, and a soul surrendered. The Ensign annooneed that the Harvest festival was very successful, and that we had sixty dollars over the target. We realized eighty-five dollars by the sale of goods on Mon day.-G. Whittaker.

As regards his religious experience at that time, it may be said that although he had knelt at an Army Penitent-form, yet he was wavering between becoming a member of the Presbyterian Church or joining The alvation Army.

He duly arrived at the town of Cat, Ont., and on the first night, feeling a bit blue and lonesome in a new land he thought he would attend an Army meeting. Caplain (now Lieut.-Colonel), Turner was in charge of the Corps then, and his attention was attracted to the new-comer from the first. When testi-monies were called for young Crichton got up and sang a solo, in broad Scotch.
